(revised and readopted)

WHEREAS, the Reclamation Reform Act of 1982 (RRA) directed the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation (Reclamation) to encourage water conservation on federal water projects throughout the seventeen western states, and required districts receiving water from those federal projects to develop water conservation plans; and

WHEREAS, in March 1996, Reclamation adopted an approach to promoting water conservation that would focus on the development of an incentive-based program of technical and financial assistance to districts in lieu of mandatory regulations and other top-down, command-and-control approaches to conservation; and

WHEREAS, Reclamation's Water Conservation Field Services Program (WCFSP) was established in 1997 to encourage the efficient use of water on federal water projects and, in cooperation with States and other entities, provide a non-regulatory, incentive-based approach to assisting water districts, in accordance with state law, develop and implement effective water conservation plans required by the RRA; and

WHEREAS, since 1997, Reclamation's 21 Area Offices have offered local programs that provide assistance and non-binding guidance to districts in four areas of emphasis: 1) water management planning; 2) conservation education; 3) demonstration of innovative conservation technologies; and, 4) implementation of effective conservation measures; and

WHEREAS, the WCFSP's incentive-based conceptual approach is well-received by water districts and other stakeholders at the local level as an appropriate role for Reclamation in encouraging water conservation on federal water projects and fostering improved water management on a watershed, statewide and regional basis; and

WHEREAS, in July 1998, as part of the program outreach under the WCFSP, Reclamation initiated a "Bridging-the-Headgate" conservation partnership with USDA-Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), the National Association of State Conservation Agencies (NASCA), and the National Association of Conservation Districts (NACD), three organizations that have traditionally worked very closely together to support and encourage conservation and resource stewardship among private landowners, farmers, and water users on the "on-farm" side of the water use's headgate; and
